

End User Licensing Requirement For Aloha Connect Solutions

Solutions noted in the following section as requiring Aloha Connect licensing require the following key activation on the Aloha Software Key:

A software key is licensed at the site level for Aloha Connect. Since this is a site level license, only a quantity of one (1) is required no matter the number of applications leveraging the license.

As part of the license, the number of External Interface Terminals (EIT) should be activated on the software key. The number of EITs coincides with the number of interfaced applications. The rule of thumb for EIT activations is:

- One EIT designated for each interfaced application
- One EIT designated for each hardware device that is integrated (kiosk, mobile device, etc)

For the Aloha Connect license to be functional, a minimum of one (1) EIT must be licensed. There is no maximum for the number of EITs that may be activated for standard Table Service of Quick Service Aloha software key.
